She was equally gifted as a musician and enjoyed music all her life. She was a devoted member of First Baptist Church of Forrest City and was active there in her younger years. Fredene cared for both her parents through long illnesses without complaint and following their deaths, she enjoyed several years of travel. In 2001 she moved to Little Rock to be near her family. She continued painting and drawing and also participated in the Arkansas Children's Hospital program to knit hats for preemie infants. As her health declined she moved to Parkway Health Center.
