“ I really can't even find words, but knowing you passed, and knowing the grieving and hurt shared by those I was once soo soooooo very close to, I love you Sherry! You were so nice to me, accepted me when I had no family around for miles away. You understood me, and the love I had for him. You didn't judge, maybe called it as you saw it, but never judged. I didn't know of you passing til the day of your funeral, my heart was so heavy. I wanted to have been there, respectfully for you, and bc your family was always mine as well. My heart is still heavy knowing the pain and grief they are all going through. Many nights I want to cry and hug the ones I haven't seen for years, just knowing how bad it must hurt.....I am so glad Tila and I made that trip several yrs ago to see you!!! I wanted to say hello to all, but just didn't have the time. I have always left a huge chunk of my heart in AR, YOU know why. I'll never get it back, and now it only weighs heavier! You are just an amazing woman! And those steak burritos, yeah, friggin BOMB!!! I will come visit you, sneak in and sneak out I guess. You would be so proud, I am a RN. Received my degree just a few weeks ago!!! I have wanted to at least pay my respects even if you would knock me upside the back of my head for waiting this long! I am so sorry, but I will be there soon! Prayers for everyone left behind, I think of YOU all the time, I wish I could fix the hurt. I wish there was something I could do.
