My grandpa pippin, I wish I could pull up to your house again and come inside just to see you. You never know how precious time really is. I miss you every single day and love you even more now than the day you left, difference is you have grandma there with you now, I hope we can all be together again at least for a moment remembering how much we all love each other in humanly ways when we all unite again. I love you and can't wait to hug your neck till then I feel incomplete. With every fiber of my being I love you grandpa pippin-your grandson Justin Bryan pippin
